

[Download] Birth and Rebirth on an Alaskan Island: The Life of an Alutiiq Healer

Birth and Rebirth on an Alaskan Island: The Life of an Alutiiq Healer

Joanne Mulcahy

ebooks / Download PDF / *ePub / DOC / audiobook

 Download

 Read Online

#519735 in Books University of Georgia Press 2001-01-05 2001-01-12Original language:EnglishPDF # 1
8.50 x .81 x 5.50l, .96 #File Name: 0820322539208 pages | File size: 67.Mb

Joanne Mulcahy : Birth and Rebirth on an Alaskan Island: The Life of an Alutiiq Healer before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Birth and Rebirth on an Alaskan Island: The Life of an Alutiiq Healer:

0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Beautifully written.By Arturo CervantesA deeply thoughtful and tender portrayal of a tenacious and remarkable woman in a land most of us will never witness. Beautifully written.7 of 8 people found the following review helpful. This is a quietly beautiful and fascinating storyBy A CustomerThis is a quietly beautiful and fascinating story--a work of scholarship and a work of love. Joanne Mulcahy has written a stunning book about Mary Peterson, a remarkable woman, and about the cultural revival that both Mary and the author played crucial roles in bringing about. It is something few Americans know anything about--and all of us should.

When Joanne B. Mulcahy first helped Mary Peterson a respected elder of the Akhiok community find a safe home away from the violence and alcoholism that had altered village life, she never imagined that they would meet again five years later and begin more than twelve years of interviews, letters, and visits that would transform the lives of both women. Birth and Rebirth on an Alaskan Island offers the fascinating story of Mary's life, from her experience growing up within the traditional society of Akhiok to her work as a teacher, a Community Health Aide, a mother, a grandmother, and an Alutiiq midwife and healer. Through her story we discover a society that blended native Alutiiq culture with the Russian Orthodox teachings handed down from late-eighteenth- and nineteenth-century colonists; that mixed modern education and employment with a subsistence lifestyle; that sanctioned arranged marriages but upheld civil divorce laws; and, above all, that recovered its confidence in traditional healing both of the body and of the community. More than a personal story of survival, Birth and Rebirth on an Alaskan Island portrays, in Akhiok, a resilience formed through a return to a strong sense of community. As we become acquainted with the Kodiak world through Mary Peterson's story, we come to realize the strength of the native oral tradition and to see that knowing and healing are pivotal elements of the Alutiiq way particularly as they bring to light the previously unrecognized efforts, inspirations, and accomplishments of countless women healers.

A significant contribution to Alaskan anthropology and to the ethnographic literature about Alutiiq people. Joanne Mulcahy's writing is exceptional, and her scholarship meets the highest standards for ethnographic studies. Truly outstanding, she stands on the firm foundation established by Margaret Mead, Elizabeth Marshall Thomas, and Colin Turnbull. (Richard Nelson author of Make Prayers to the Raven: A Koyukon View of the Northern Forest) [This book] has taken on the important task of making certain that the lives of the healing women, the midwives, are not forgotten. (Gordon L. Pullar from the foreword) About the Author Joanne B. Mulcahy is an ethnographer and writer. She teaches and co-directs the Documentary Studies Certificate Program at the Northwest Writing Institute at Lewis Clark College in Portland, Oregon. Her latest book is "Remedios: The Healing Life of Eva Castellanoz"