Nicolette P. Ringgold : Out of the Corner of My Eye: Living with Macular Degeneration before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Out of the Corner of My Eye: Living with Macular Degeneration:

Ms. Ringgold's personal account of sudden vision loss and her subsequent adjustment is full of practical advice and cheerful encouragement. It's told by the 87-year-old retired college teacher who maintained her independence and zest for life. Readers will get an enlightening perspective into her initial reactions, the ongoing accommodations one must make to loss of vision, and ways to continue one's activities both indoors and out. This newly reissued version brings the information up to date, and an extensive resource section and listing of available services complete this essential guide.
