unconnected group of interviews mostly with individuals on the fringe of the events.

In 2011, the city of Reading, Pennsylvania was named the poorest in the United States. This book is a collection of stories from those on the front lines working to make it a better place. It is a story of hope, passion, tenacity and the drive to shatter the stronghold of poverty and rise from the ashes once again.

About the Author Matthew Shaner lives in Wyomissing, Pennsylvania with his wife Valerie and two sons. He obtained his MFA in Creative Writing from Fairfield University and has published thirty short stories, two novellas, and a novel.
